

MAIN ACCESS ROUTES TO MONDRAGÓ NATURE RESERVE

Mondragó Nature Reserve is located in the south-east of Mallorca, in the municipality of Santanyí. This protected natural park has also been declared a Natural Area of Special Interest (ANEI according to its acronym in Catalan) and it forms part of the Xarxa Natura 2000 network as a Special Conservation Area (ZEC in Catalan) and a Special Bird Protection Area (ZEPA according to its acronym in Catalan).

It has two car parks, one next to the nature reserve's information centre, at Ses Fonts de n'Alis, and the other at Ca sa Muda, in the S'Amarador area. These are the only two places in the nature reserve where the Natural Resource Management Plan (PORN according to its acronym in Catalan) for Mondragó allows vehicles to park.

Mondragó Nature Reserve contains habitats and species of interest to the community. Given how very fragile they are, any negative human impact on them must be avoided and they must be very carefully conserved.

High vehicle traffic during the summer months can have a damaging effect on the nature reserve's biodiversity. That is why the access routes to the car parks must be regulated to ensure the protection and conservation of Mondragó's habitats and species, while also ensuring safer, more peaceful visits to the nature reserve.

These main access routes to Mondragó must be used so as to guarantee a steady reduction in the number of visitors who travel to it along secondary roads or routes where, in some cases, vehicle access is forbidden.
